Comprehension Test: Black Beauty

Name _____

Date _____

One day, Ginger and Black Beauty were standing under the chestnut tree. Ginger told Beauty her story.

‘Two men took me away from my mother. They had a bridle and a whip. One of them was my master, Samson. He held my mane and the other man pushed the bit into my mouth very roughly. I was shocked – it hurt so badly. Then Samson started to pull me along by the bridle. The other man whipped me.

‘I hated Samson. One day, he made me trot round the field until I was so tired that I nearly fell. The next day, he put a bridle on me and threw a saddle on to my back.

‘Samson told people he was an excellent rider. That day, I made a plan to teach him a lesson. He got on my back and pulled hard on the reins. I reared up on my back legs and Samson started to whip me. I kicked and bucked and reared. I tried everything to throw this terrible man off my back. He held my mane and dug his sharp metal spurs into my sides. The spurs cut me badly.

‘But at last, I threw him off my back! I galloped to the other end of the field and stood still. Samson got up and limped through the gate.

‘I stood there for a long time. It was a hot day. Flies buzzed around me. I was hungry and very thirsty. Then, as the sun went down, Samson’s father came into the field and walked up to me. He patted me and fed me some oats. Then he led me to the stables. He gently took off my saddle and bridle and filled my bucket with cold water.

‘As he washed the blood from my sides, Samson came into my stable. The old man shook his head at him and said, “Look at poor Ginger! If you treat a horse badly, it will treat you badly too!”

‘I didn’t see Samson again. A groom looked after me, and the old man came to see me every day. When my sides got better, the old man sold me to a smart man from London. I hoped he was a kind man.’
