

 B: I wear a helmet, gloves, a fireproof jacket, and pants to protect myself. I carry special equipment to breathe inside smoky buildings. I have an axe to break down doors and a flashlight to see in the dark.

Read, circle, and complete.

Sometimes we use two verbs in a sentence. After some verbs, e.g. decide, want, need, and learn, the second verb is the infinitive with to:

I decided to become a firefighter.

I wanted to help people.

You need to keep calm.

I learned to drive a fire engine.

We also use the infinitive with to talk about the purpose or reason for something:

I wear a helmet to protect my head.

I carry a flashlight to see in the dark.

I have an axe _____ break down doors.
